Description

Intern Project, offered to German majors in the junior/senior year, is an important part of teaching as it provides opportunities for students to apply their language knowledge and skills in cross-culture communication and it also serves as a test for students' corresponding abilities. Students will have a sharper sense of German and feel more at ease with the use of German after the intern project. They will learn to think on their own as well as observe, analyze and solve problems in the workplace. They'll also learn the importance of foreign affairs and trade with a brief understanding of relevant policies and laws and regulations. This will result in their proper view of life, sense of social responsibility and work ethics. They will learn from the society what is required of German majors so as to be more involved and informed in independent study and planning for their future, thus laying a foundation for future work.
