

Course Information
Course Code	EN262	*	(Credit Hours)	32	* Credits	2
* Course Name	Foundations of Translation
(Course Type)	Mandatory
Audience	Second-grade English undergraduates
(Language of Instruction)	English Chinese
* School	School of Foreign Languages
Prerequisite	1/2/3	English Reading and Writing		1/2/3
Instructor	(Course Webpage)
* Description	3
* Description	Foundations of Translation is a mandatory course for all undergraduates of English majors during the 3rd semester. In this course, students will be introduced to the essential concepts and major theories in translation studies. The course covers a wide range of topics, such as the relation between language, culture and translation, the nature of translation, the process of translation, different types of translation, the principles of translation, translator's subjectivity, translation strategies and methods, frontier in translation studies. Case studies are employed to explain the theories, and to deepen their understanding of the theories. This course aims at laying a solid foundation for students in their future study of translation theories and practice.
course syllabus

--	--	--	--	--	--