* Description
* Description	Senior students of English major are supposed to transcend the basic ability of understanding the literal meaning of the language and to aim at the ability of comprehending the deeper, subtle and rhetoric meaning of the language. And their reading material should no longer be limited to narration and description, but to expand to exposition and argumentation, works of witty and original ideas. Classical British and American essays are models of beautiful language and smart ideas, and therefore are best suitable for the purpose of senior students. Besides, Good essays are helpful to the promotion of students' persuasive use of English and logical thinking. A Selected Reading of British and American Essays is intended to serve that purpose. This is a compulsory course that recommends a selected, close, critical reading of the excerpts. The Essays were produced since the European and American Renaissance, dealing with subjects like philosophy, aesthetics, literature, education,
